A Home Made Niagara

By Arthur Brisbane
YOU ARE LIVING in a world still primitive. Brazil recognizes itself by violence, just as this country did 164 years ago, and the Brazilian mob in São Paulo tears down the Castrucci prison, as the mob of the French Revolution tore down the Bastille.

In the Arctic, German scientists, travelling peacefully on their dog sleds, were suddenly abandoned by their Greenland guides, who informed the Germans that there were demons on the ice. They knew it by the sudden change in the weather. The Germans tried to persuade the Greenlanders that demons live in a hot country and couldn't stand the ice, but the Greenlanders know better. Their bell is frozen, not hot.

Mr. William Foy observes, with cold surprise, the difference between these times of home distress and a certain period in the great war. "Do you remember," says he, "what we did for the Allies and the warring factions?"

There is quite a difference. Then the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army were raising scores of millions for Europe. And our national government practically bulldozed the people into buying thousands of millions worth of bonds, the proceeds sent to Europe. However, little Belgians, cunning Armenians, Turks, Chinese, Russians and such, combined with war, are more than enough to ruin anything particularly romantic about an ordinary American out of work and worrying about his family. In fact, you are told that the government itself can't do anything about the present distress. Public generosity must do everything. It probably won't do much. And the government may change its mind if the winter turns out to be as anticipated.

The British debt may be a "confession of failure" and all that. But worse things are conceivable.

There was a time in Queen Elizabeth's day when you had to change your ideas of the world's geography. Often new lands were discovered from week to week.

Now, with geography well known, men transfer their interest to the interior of the atom, where changes are ever changing, new theories appear almost every month.

Dr. Darrac, a young physicist of Cambridge, makes even Sir Oliver Lodge dizzy with his announcement that the proton around which the electrons revolve may be nothing but a hole.

With the theory that space is everything and matter doesn't count, Einstein has made us familiar. The theory that a perfect vacuum combines all the forces of negative energy is too much for the average mortal.

Nevertheless the new science is fascinating, even to the dull. The latest is the description of a group of spiral nebulae, receding from the earth at a speed of 7500 miles a second, a new speed record, even in astronomy.

And these objects, moving so fast that they could go around the earth in three and a half seconds, are not small speeding bullets. Each nebula is a giant cluster of stars as big probably as the Milky way in which our sun, with all its planets, is only a grain of dust. Nature does wonderful things, but in proportion to its size, man also does well.

Mr. Sloan, of the New York Edison Co., is finishing at the Schenectady General Electric plant two turbine generators strong enough to light 425,000 60-watt incandescent lamps, enough to furnish about the equivalent of a path from here to the moon with enough for every yard of the way.

Within a period of three years, the New York Edison plant has added to its equipment an amount of power equal to the total power development of Niagara.

As encouraging news on business improvement comes from Mr. Farrell, president of the big steel company, he is a conservative man, and his advice against reckless price-cutting and constructive and unconstructive criticism of the big lines of business, they will all fall in the ditch together.

President Hoover, Secretary Mellon, and the financial "best mind" that knows almost everything about finance might consider seriously the possibility of doing something for the unemployed.

Howard E. Perry, an experienced business man, is in the Orient waiting to be sent to London to must cash his check at London or must cash Continued on Page 2, Column 4

Ex-Athlete Vanishes at Night Club Here

When in an hour of worried waiting he had not happened, Mr. Chidchoune began inquiries. He learned that he had left the club without his wife, but he had not stopped even to put on his hat, which with his topcoat was in the checkroom.

LAST SEEN IN HOTEL
The telephone his father, Albert H. Chidchoune of New York, and the parent came to direct the private search. He learned that his son had walked two blocks from the night club and entered a hotel lobby, where he borrowed a handkerchief and then walked out.

There had been no quarrel between Chidchoune and his wife, who have been married about five years. He was never absent from the club in the past, but he had been in the night club on the night of the disappearance. He was 3 feet 9 inches in height, weight 170 pounds, blue eyes, dark hair, a blue pencil stripe suit with a shirker's buttons in the buttonhole of the front stripe.

AT LEGION CONVENTION
He came to Boston last week from Portland to attend the American Legion convention and last night went for his wife. Mrs. Chidchoune phoned him at a Back Bay hotel for several days.

They dined Friday evening at the Hollywood cafe. During the meal Chidchoune arose suddenly, excused himself, and said he would be back directly.

As Boston Roared Its Happy Welcome

STOCKS GAIN IN SLOW CLIMB 164 Needy Get Jobs

(Have you an odd job to be done? Call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8007, or mail the attached coupon.)

Hunger struck down one man, illness another, in the crowd seeking work yesterday at the Municipal Employment Bureau.

And through the hours, while the hopefuls waited for the telephone calls that would mean work to some of them, 164 men and women got jobs.

It was the biggest get the bureau has ever had, and Director John J. Shields gave credit to the Boston Evening American and its people of Greater Boston who have responded to this newspaper's suggestion.

Give the unemployed odd jobs around houses and buildings. But while the number given work has daily increased by leaps and bounds, so has the number applying for a chance to earn a few dollars—asking work not charity. Yesterday their number was nearly 1000.

The office in the little old building in Church at was fairly packed with applicants and the men and women who were fairly sure of getting work were not disappointed. More help is needed, yet, it is proven that Boston has a heart.

The aid given the man who escaped from hunger in the office of the employment bureau was but

THOUSANDS IN WILD SURGE TO SHAKE HIS HAND

Streets Lined With Admirers as Democratic Leader Arrives for Speech Tonight

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

A welcome that for display of warmth and genuine affection has seldom been surpassed in Boston was given "Al" Smith upon his arrival here this afternoon.

Thousands greeted the "Happy Warrior" and Mrs. Smith at South Station at 12:45. Several thousand broke police lines in Dewey ave. to rush his automobile and attempt to shake his hand. Some succeeded.

An impressive parade of nearly 1000 marchers fell in behind him, and went over the Summer-Washington-Court-Tremont-Bowdoin route, with him between many thousands of cheering men and women to Copley-Plaza Hotel.

It was not as spontaneous a welcome as awaited him on the occasion of his visit here during the presidential campaign, but it was enthusiastic and boisterous.

THE SMITHS BREAK POLICE LINES TO SHAKE 'AL' SMITH'S HAND

BROOKLYN SMITHS ACCLAIMED

Democratic State Leaders Greet Chieftain on Arrival at South Station

The scene after the arrival of the Smiths at South Station was a great day for them. The Smiths, former Mayor of Cambridge, Strickland, Charles J. Murphy, former Police Commissioner, and Mayor Peter and former Representative James were among those welcoming the party at the station.

James D. Roosevelt, son of Gov. Roosevelt of New York, was present with his wife, the former Betty Cushing of Brooklyn, to add to the welcome.

There were six official cars in the procession that started from the station for the hotel. Gov. and Mrs. Smith rode in the last one, and the governor, seated on the front, was surrounded by a crowd of admirers.

At the hotel, the Smiths were met by Mayor Peter, and the party was welcomed by the city.

Mayor Peter, Senator Walsh and the other leaders rode in an open car in the parade.

A man appeared at a barber shop window, his face shining with sweat. He was waving excitedly. Women appeared at windows of nearby shops with hair in all sorts of arrangements and styles.

Women in the crowd were the first to start handclapping. Hundreds of men and women walked the entire route like boys trailing a circus.

Today, the Smiths since he ran for president, but it was his first appearance in public since then.

Thousands lined Washington Street and Boston St. to cheer the entrance and watch the brown topknots wave and the Smith smile.

Another huge crowd was gathered in Copple St. in front of the Copple Hotel, and police fought to break a passage through to the hotel.

The hotel was reached 30 minutes after the arrival of the train. Mrs. Smith returned to the address at once with Mr. Warner to her for tonight, but the governor plunged into preparation of notes for his address, which will be extemporaneous.

Mr. Fitzgerald and Senator Walsh conferred with the governor and joined in the work of preparing the address.

"Al," left with his law partner, Jack Curran, by motor for Manchester, N. H., to visit Curran's sister who lives there.

A steady line of well-wishers wound into the hotel, but the reception of the governor and Mrs. Smith was jealously guarded by a detail of police.

Heart-Touching Scenes as 164 Needy Get Jobs

held up by the press of those around him. He was carried to an office and revived.

When he had then he had eaten a hot meal. Then they gave him the first job at general work that came in. He went away happy, believing in humanity despite his hardships.

When dollar looms big, some clerks, assistants of Mr. Shields, called say enough in their thankfulness to the people who have called offering work.

For they see the need of the unemployed, the pity of it, heart-rending scenes day in and day out. They know the meaning of a few dollars—now to these men and women, the meaning of a few dollars, readers, will get old jobs done for you, painting, repairing, cleaning—many things, which must be done sooner or later, and why not now?

The man who was taken ill yesterday collapsed in the street outside the employment office and was removed. In City Hospital, where Director Shields intends to keep a watch on his condition and to find suitable work for him when he recovers.

"More help is needed, but I cannot express how thankful I am to the Boston Evening American and the people of Metropolitan Boston for the jobs thus far provided," said Mr. Shields today.

"The help is coming in greatest part from people of moderate means, who have odd jobs that they could do themselves, but which they are willing to have the unemployed do to relieve the present situation."

"Small business concerns are likewise helping materially. If the big concerns would provide work, too, operating with the American and with this bureau, conditions would be tremendously improved."

To prove what he said last week, Shields questioned a large number of those in the through-men and women both—men and women, many had not had breakfast, and asked everything on getting a job.

Another illustration of conditions arose when a call came for a janitor. "Any one?" he asked of the crowd of the found to be duly grateful.

"Well, how many children have you?" asked George Parks, one of the bureau's working force, addressing one of these applicants.

"Two," was the answer.

"Any more?" he asked of the other.

"I've got two more," this one replied.

There was nothing to it but to take a coat, take two, and the lucky one went to work, while the other said with a smile:

"Better luck next time."

There was not another call for a janitor yesterday, but he is hoping that there will be one today. And so are the clerks, who see it all. Paperhangers are wanted. There were calls several, and the demand could not be met. Director Shields made it a rule that only trained men are sent out, for they have fully qualified applicants for virtually every job there is—in office, factory, anywhere.

And there cannot be enough call on these Municipal Employment Bureau telephones. If you want that odd job done now—and why not?—call Liberty 7-7777 and state your wants or mail the coupon.

BEACON ST. TUNNEL TO AUDUBON CIRCLE

STORES BALK AT ENTRANCE NEAR BRIDGE

Traffic Congestion Would Hurt Business; Decision Hangs on "L" Referendum

The Beacon st. section of the Governor's tunnel extension, which under present plans is to be carried out under that thoroughfare to the Boston & Albany bridge, may be extended as far as Audubon Circle at an additional cost of $1,600,000, Mayor Curley announced today.

The mayor made this announcement following a conference with representatives of the Boston Elevated Railway, and members of the Boston Transit Commission. The conference was called at the request of the property owners who were unanimous in the opinion that had values along Beacon st. would be depreciated and permanent injury done to that section if the street car entrance to the tunnel were located in the middle of that thoroughfare and in a spot close to the bridge.

WOULD HURT BUSINESS

The merchants pointed out that traffic would be seriously interfered with and that the tunnel in road of serving its purpose of relieving conditions would merely tend to aggravate them. It was suggested to the Mayor that if the subway extension were carried as far as Audubon Circle this condition would be eliminated and property values would increase along Beacon st. If the original plan is carried out, the Mayor was told, many of those now doing business in Beacon st. will have to seek other quarters.

The mayor stated that he himself favors the proposed extension to the new bridge, built at a cost of $1,600,000, but that he can do nothing until the voters of metropolitan Boston take action next Tuesday election day, on the referendum to determine whether the "L" shall continue privately owned with a lease of power franchises or whether it shall be publicly owned.

CONFER NEXT WEEK

Under the provisions of the act providing for the Governor's tunnel extension, the city, which is necessary to provide for further extension in the project, the approval of the trustees and directors of the Boston Elevated Company. It was agreed at the time the act was passed that the city should be no expenditures beyond the original sum of $1,000,000 until after the question of public ownership is decided by the voters.

For that reason, Mayor Curley has postponed all action on the matter until next Wednesday, when he will hold a conference in his office with representatives of the B. E. R. and the Metropolitan Transit Commission and the board of directors of the B. E. R.

THE GUILTY IN MUTE ATTACK

Victims of guilty were returned today in Middlesex Superior Court against James Gray, 35, and Arthur Porter, 27, both of Cambridge, charged with attacking Lillian B. May, 21, of Cambridge, on the night of October 25.

Both men took calmly the verdict returned at the jury last night after five hours' deliberation, and turned over to Judge James H. Smith at opening of court today.

A half dozen relatives of the defendants—all women—stood unable at first to grasp full significance of the verdict and waited dazedly from the courtroom.

Outside in the courtyard, however, the wife of Porter suddenly collapsed and fell in the pavement. She was carried to a ladies' room in the courthouse and attended by a physician.

After the verdicts were read by the court clerk and assented to by the jury, Judge Smith set tomorrow at 10 A. M. as the time for imposing sentence.

According to the story told police by the girl and the couple with whom she lived and later related in testimony, Gray and Porter, engaged in the trucking business, came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Johnson in Pearl st., Cambridge, on the night of October 25 to collect a bill of $31.

Porter was declared to have had a bottle of gin and a bottle of alcohol from which they offered Miss May and Johnson drink. She went to her room, but had been there only a short time, she testified, when Gray forced open the door. Then Porter appeared behind her and both began to push her around the room.

How Summer Street Welcomed 'The Happy Warrior'

HERE'S HOW "AL" SMITH came back to Summer st. today. The welcome given him today was only slightly less spontaneous, slightly less noisy than the one he received a scant two years ago when he was in the thick of his greatest political battle.

Boston today gave him a whole-hearted acclaim that, no doubt, stirred the responsive chords of his heart and recalled that happy time when crowds went wild for him. This photo shows the crowd and his auto.

Lipton to Have New Yacht Ready in Two Years

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, entertaining today for Southampton to take the Leithan for America, said he will build a new yacht in two years to race for the America's Cup.

"Am I going to contest for the America's Cup next year?" said Sir Thomas. "I don't think so, unless I have a boat like the 'American' have," he laughed, "but by the following year I'll have a Shamrock ready that will make the Americans sit up."

"We Scotch-Irish don't easily give up," Sir Thomas said as he left the yacht. "The police have another mark at the cup, but this time I'll win."

The merchant-sportsman evident, Lipton was in high spirits. He looked happy and fit and said he was killing two birds with one stone this time, combining business with a holiday overseas.

With the finding of the bodies in the death toll mounted to five.

Youth Taken for 'Ride' in Divorce Suit, He Says

Portland, Me., Oct. 28 (AP)—A youth giving his name as Francis F. Robideau, 19, of 3 Washburn st., Worcester, told police today he had been "taken for a ride" for knowing too much about the divorce case of a retired Worcester mill man.

Robideau, who claimed he was bodyguard for the wealthy Worcester man, said he had been kidnapped to permit the "bumping off" of his employer and shed tears when police insisted on holding him.

Hungry and tired, he appeared at police headquarters and told Capt. William E. White he had been thrown out of the Cityarched after being given there.

When police held him for investigation he sent a telegram to the mill man. Police were informed the Worcester man declared he did not know the boy, had never employed him, but understood Robideau lived near some property he owned.

BIG OVATION TO 'KITTY' SMITH

Kitty Smith came to Boston today. Better known as the wife of Al Smith, the smiling, unpretentious woman who strives to keep herself in the background, received a tremendous ovation in her own right.

Even before leaving the special car on which the Smith party arrived, Mrs. Smith was given a tremendous ovation in her own right.

In spite of the trip and the excitement of last night, Mrs. Smith appeared in the best of health and spirits.

She wore a black figure-fitting suit, with black coat trimmed with fur collar and cuffs, black also-fitting hat. Silver-colored stockings and black patent leather pumps.

Although insisting her husband is the "speech maker" of the family, she consented to give the following message to the people of the Commonwealth:

"I came on this trip as a companion to my husband to show my warm appreciation to the people of Massachusetts, who so loyally supported him in 1924. I feel I must with propriety express my sympathy for the mothers and daughters of America to whom in their homes comes with over-education and the effects of industrial depression and unemployment."

Certainly it seems to me the voters of Massachusetts, particularly the women, will express by their ballots their feelings toward the promise of prosperity made by the Republican party in 1924. We will not answer a fugitive from justice, nor will we support a man who has been convicted of a crime.

Scene of Many Supper Parties for Young Folks; Dancing Feted Popular

THE WATERFRONT CLUB is again a favorite rendezvous for the young set and Bob Eisenberg's crooning orchestra is luring the deb down to the wharf on Saturday nights. The setting is the same as last year and it is only possible to attend a cozy little supper party there by the post-session of a ticket which will permit the bearer to linger until the wee morn' hours.

LAST SATURDAY NIGHT WE saw Miss Emily Warren, daughter of Dr. Warren, and her friends, Danton Garmen, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Martin, Doctor and Blodgett, Constance Percival and Virginia Taylor, Betty and Paul Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Brackett, the Donald Comers, Frederick Turnbull, and Mrs. Turnbull from Cambridge and the wealthy blonde daughter of the Robert Stones, Miss Helen Stone, in all the delightful informal, more like a club party than a supper club, the couples cutting in on dances and giving first one table party and then another.

Representatives of 165 women's clubs today pledged their support and co-operation in plans for the relief of unemployment. Eleven hundred delegates met on record to that effect at the convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs in Worcester.

The resolution reads: "Whereas, the unemployment situation is a matter of deep concern to the citizens of this State, and

"Whereas, Governor Allen in recognizing the disturbing situation in the field of unemployment is forming a committee to attempt to ameliorate the conditions of unemployment, therefore

"We resolved, that the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs pledge its support and offer its cooperation to Governor Allen and his committee."

The clubwomen were urged in special address to prevent accidents in half a million homes this year by Lewis E. MacBryne of the Massachusetts Safety Council.

PROSECUTE LAW BREAKERS "We must remove permanently from the highways 250 motor vehicles and we must send into the courts thousands of pedestrians who refuse to obey regulations made for their protection," MacBryne declared. "If we treat the accident into the home as a mere accident, when we talk to the injured person, that the human element was the factor in nine out of 10 accidents."

"It is not important to discuss whether the driver or the pedestrian is more often to blame. The point is that if the individual will accept the responsibility, we can reduce highway accidents to the relatively small group of those who refuse to obey regulations."

"If we cannot bring this about then we must undertake a campaign of regulation, carried on by the registrar and the police, more drastic than anything that has yet been attempted."

In treating the motor accident to the home, the speaker gave case records of the disastrous effects on families several months after suffering from a serious accident, and how the accident had affected the family that was the factor in nine out of 10 accidents.

"In Massachusetts this year, the many accidents working on the problem have been causing a most interesting experiment," the speaker related. "The safety education work has a very definite effect on the accident rate. At the present time there are 3000 accidents a year, and this number is increasing and the organizations co-operating with it will show decreased accidents."

MISS MARION L. TOLFOID, field secretary of the National Safety Council, reported that 20,000 fatal accidents occurred in American homes last year, with $300,000,000 in damages.

These were due to four principal causes—falls, burns, asphyxiation and poison.

White Gowns Predominate at Opening of Opera

By ANN ARDEN
New York, Oct. 28.—Stunning evening fashions, elegant, flattering, beautiful.

Green in origin but all-American in acceptance. Lots and lots of white and also lots of black and deep pastels. Gowns contrasting with wraps and also contrasting with accessories.

There you have the fashion highlights of the gala opening night at the Metropolitan Opera.

Hits were fashion leaders in all their gorgeous evening things, that they were here to show the fashion to be worn throughout America.

WHITE LEADS In these evening gowns of beauty in the famous "Golden Horseshoe" white was first in number, then came black, then deep pastels, darker pastels than those of last year. More definite in their coloring, blue, coral, green, pink.

Because they were green in influence these evening gowns were longer, often to the ankles or below, all with even hemlines—and as easy to wear they were to look at.

In fabric these dresses were first, crepe, then satin and flat. Also a new wrangled tailcoat, stiff velvet and sequins. These long Greek dresses were straight and full—many trimmed with Greek bands—some with rhinestones. Many with pelicans. There were also some period dresses of the 1890's, draped to the back.

The wraps had more individuality than for several seasons past. Most of them were to the knee and longer. Black velvet first—usually trimmed with white fur, with ermine, ermine and many foxes. The wraps, often contrasting with the dresses, differing from last season's wraps which were inclined to match dresses.

CREPE DE CHINE PUMPS As with all such affairs there were many jewels worn—though not quite as many as last year. The place was brilliant with brilliant and rhinestones, and, of course, there were hundreds of beautifully dressed women wearing pearls, of great many turquoises, too. And a few with twisted belts of jewels.

Fashion's shoes were pumps, crepe de chine to match or contrast with wrap and dress. There were some sandals worn, too. Most women wore long gloves—white or black.

And there you have—briefly summed up—the fashion highlights of the gala opening night at the Metropolitan Opera.

WORKERS SAY THAT MID-AFTERNOON IS THEIR ZERO HOUR

Many Have Discovered That Food With Sugar Content Renews Vigor

Rare indeed is the business that does not call for more speed from mid-afternoon on. Stenographers, clerks and salespeople will testify to this. Yet vitality is invariably low at this important period.

Scientific tests have proved that eating something between three and four o'clock will refresh the system almost as much as complete rest. The best food to eat is one rich in refined sugar such as candy, cookies, ice cream or a sweet beverage. The refined sugar not only supplies quick nourishment, but is easily digested.

In overcoming fatigue by this method, the system is able to resist those common colds which are often "caught" on the way home. What's more, a refreshed body is much more efficient during the busy afternoon hours than one that is "tired out."

With no loss of time and practically no expense, sweet foods can be bought for a mid-afternoon snack. Sugar dissolved in a glass of water will "pick one up." This drink is known as the "athlete's cocktail." Most foods are more delicious and refreshing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

THIS PICTURE SHOWS the first King's Chapel, now at the corner of School and Tremont sts. The building shown was erected of wood in the year 1688 and this picture was made not long afterward. The chapel is probably the oldest built upon ground in Boston. Blackstone's homestead occupied. In 1741 the present building was begun enclosing the old church in which services continued to be held. It was nearly 20 years in finishing, owing to the lack of funds and high cost for those times. In the picture, above may be seen the old beacon on Beacon Hill where the State House now stands. TOMORROW — Aspinwall House.

FIRE BOILTS 14 IN LYNN

Three families, including nine children, were driven to the street today when fire broke out in the cellar of the three-story dwelling at 67 Bulfinch st., Lynn.

The fire, starting in a rubbish pile, was discovered by Mrs. Raymond Woodworth, living on the first floor, when she opened the cellar door.

She fled with her three children, after giving the alarm, and was followed by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lovell, with four children from the second floor and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Magee with two children from the third floor.

The flames were confined to the cellar. The damage being estimated at $500.

TRIBUTE PAID CIVIL SERVICE TO HEARST BARS DOWN

Washington, Oct. 28—William Randolph Hearst was praised for the patriotic campaign for an adequate national defense conducted by his newspapers, at a Navy Day meeting of the National Patriotic Council here last night.

Members of the council were led by Louis L. Perry, U. S. S. that lack of sympathetic understanding in times of peace does more harm to the American Navy than actual warfare.

Hector L. Holmes, secretary of the council, said:

"I want to take this opportunity to voice my warm admiration of the patriotic work done by Mr. William Randolph Hearst in campaigning for an adequate national defense."

"He deserves the support of this council and other patriotic organizations in his campaign to secure a navy for the United States which will be able to protect our shores and our commerce."

"He has never failed to lend sympathetic attention to the needs of our navy and has fought against all attempts to cripple it and make it inferior to the navies of foreign powers."

Mrs. Cora Rose Potts, president of the council, also expressed admiration of the patriotism of Mr. Hearst and said she had found the campaign conducted by his newspapers of great value.

The Civil Service Commission voted unanimously today that, in certifying laborers for temporary employment, preference be given those on the list who have dependents.

However, under the law, the new law cannot become operative before January 5 at the earliest, even if it is approved by the Governor and Congress following a public hearing—which cannot be held until at least seven days' notice has been given.

MUELLER'S
ELBOW MACARONI

As a Change from Potatoes

Isn't there sometimes too much sameness in the luncheons and dinners you prepare? It's so in every family—but it's so hard to think of something different!

A Simple, Inexpensive Idea

Here's a happy thought! Have MUELLER'S MACARONI, prepared according to one of the recipes specially planned for this better macaroni. If there are small children in your family, the "elbow" macaroni recipe shown below will make a real "hit," as the shape makes it very easy for them to eat.

BAKED ELBOW MACARONI with Pimiento Cheese

1 pkg. MUELLER'S ELBOW MACARONI;
2 packages pimiento cheese; 2 cups top milk or thin cream; ¼ tsp. salt; ½ tsp. paprika. Par-boil the elbow macaroni 7 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tsp. salt. Drain. Beat cheese into milk until thoroughly blended. Add salt and paprika. Put layer of elbow macaroni in buttered baking dish, then layer of cream mixture, alternating with elbow macaroni on top. Bake 15 min. in moderate oven. Serve hot.

A Delightful Lightness

Nine minutes' boiling will give you the best results; two minutes more may be allowed if special tenderness is desired. No other macaroni cooks up so light and "fluffy"—so be sure to say "MUELLER'S" to your grocer. He has it, or can get it for you.

The Ideal Hostess

Our Wild Life Department will gladly give hints to the host or hostess on how to entertain pleasure-minded house guests. We have on file a list of instructions for porcupine games, such as the following—

AN INDOOR GARDEN PARTY

Lady guests represent various flowers given them by the hostess—such as Heliotrope, Mignonette, Pansy, Rose, Lily, etc.

The gentleman (if there are any such persons) are given names of insects, such as Midge, Gnat, Wasp, Bee, Butterfly, Bait, Weevil,
Borer, etc.

When the hostess drops her handkerchief, first a guest at blows a whistle, all the flowers and insects move around the room anticlockwise. When a flower is mentioned by name, the person representing that flower is supposed to bend over, sing and carry on like a flower. The insects can behave in whatever manner they like—shrink away or step the flower on the back, good naturally, or make characteristic noises. If a flower or insect fails to respond when its name is called, it is considered such as requiring that the player then called go to his (or her) bed and droop.

Gradually the players are all eliminated, and then the host and hostess, after eating a lot of ice cream and cake, go to bed.

A charge of thirty-five cents for each guest will help defray the cost of the entertainment and refreshments.

BIG BROKERAGE HOUSE BULLISH FOR "TURN"

By FRANK H. MILLON

One of the largest Boston and New York stock exchange houses, a prominent member for the "turn" major partners have been buying actively, and have for several days been not only buying but also selling at their limit at new bottom prices. This is a first for the market. The house has been something very much in the way of a "turn" in the market, and its account any stock in the market.

A Wall Street officer says of W. J. Thron, newly-elected head of the National Assn. of Cotton Manufacturers, which has its headquarters in New York City, that he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

Thron has assumed new responsibilities, and he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

There has been a recent movement looking in betterment of cotton manufacturing conditions, and he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

Few presidential elections have been approved as recently by the voters, and he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

A leading Washington adviser has declared that it is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

It is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

To judge, commodity price movements is not our function, and he is a "turn" in the market. He is a "turn" in the market, and he is a "turn" in the market.

No Time for Pessimism Now, Raskob's View

By MERRYL STANLEY RIKVEYER

New York, Oct. 28.—"I make eleven points to you," said Mr. Raskob, president of the Federal Reserve Bank, in his address to the American Association of Banks in New York today.

With the autumn nearly half over, it has become apparent that the speculative forces working to restore property will operate slowly, and public credit will be maintained on the shoulders of the unemployed. EARLY GAINS ARE REDUCED BY LATE PROFIT TAKING

New York, Oct. 29.—The stock market closed irregularly higher today, after rising cautiously during the early hours of the day and fluctuating during the late afternoon. The closing prices of the leading stocks are higher, including several oils, coppers and utilities.

Manufacturing issues in general are higher, with a few exceptions. At spot, breaking 5 points, and fluctuating the remainder of the day. The gains in the past prices recorded in the early afternoon were in part due to gains running from 1 to 5 points.

coverly in the carrier issues moderate improvement reflected reduced operating expenses. The market for oil was steady, but fluctuated by unofficial Wall Street estimates of the amount of oil which will be reported on Thursday.

The oils were sluggish, as was in both gasolines and kerosene. Prices still showed no signs of recovery.

United Engineering & Foundry Co. (NYSE: UEN) third quarter earnings of $1,000,000, compared with $1,000,000 in the previous quarter and $1,000,000 in the prior year.

The bond market maintained firm trend today as quality issues and domestic issues of investment houses reflected gradual change in sentiment which has developed coincident with the outlook in foreign countries and the share filled orders on hand Sept. 30 totaled $4,338,398. Total sales for 1934-35 for the entire year were $3,984,084, or an average of $3,362,581 tons per ton, 1933. The further reduction in the price of securities as a result of the payment in the consolidated condition of the company's securities to the member banks was regarded with considerable satisfaction for the year. The company's total assets of $41,000,000 in three banks, leading to the hope that the company's securities would be further "thoroughly weeded out" and the company's total assets would be recent high prices of these loans and the considerable proceeds some quarters.

EARNINGS STATEMENT

The report of International Business Machines for the first nine months, showing net of $8.68, net $7.70 in the like period last year, was well received by investors. The stock advanced by strength in that market and Underwood Elliott as follows:

	Final Three Months	Total Year
I.B.M.	+9.00	+32.00
U.E.C.	+7.00	+27.00

The final three months' gains were sufficient to bring them both up to par or better, although they still remain too low for fair coverage for the preferred stocks.

FOR GOVERNOR—JOSEPH B. ELY

His Platform and Courageous Campaign on Vital Issues Merit Voters' Support

NEXT TUESDAY the citizens of Massachusetts will exercise their sovereign right and perform their public duty by selecting the officials they desire to serve them and to guide the affairs of the Commonwealth for two years.

In arriving at their important decision, they will be guided by two factors: 1—Whether the Democratic or the Republican platform better represents the real issues at this time, better crystallizes the spirit of public will and contains the better promise of achieving the desires and purposes of the public.

2—Whether the candidates themselves typify and symbolize these issues and by their intelligence, alertness and honesty of purpose can accomplish them responsibly to the will of the public.

As between the Republican and the Democratic platform there can be no choice. The Republican platform is evasive, it is unprogressive and in so far as the interests of Massachusetts are concerned, it might well have been written at Washington.

On prohibition, it concedes the right of the people to work for a constitutional change, as if the public needed to be conceded any such right at all. It asks the public to ignore the corruption, crime and disorder that have been produced by prohibition. It asks the public to wait one year, two years, possibly ten years in order that their judgment may be prescribed for them by the Wickersham Commission, whose chairman manifests his grim psychology by suggesting the return of the whipping post.

The Republican platform defends the London naval pact, which was adopted in violation of the security of the United States and in violation of the patriotic advice of the naval officials who, more than the unpatriotic, fawning statesmen, know the defense needs of this country.

It defends the Hawley-Smoot-Grundy tariff, which is already shutting the gates of export trade against us when unemployed walk the streets and when business is stagnated. This tariff will, when it blossoms into maturity, exact a billion dollars annually from the consumers for the benefit of those powerful financial interests which have largely financed Republican campaigns.

The Republican platform treats the State issues with a contemptuous disregard. Massachusetts, it would seem, is the tail of a kite at Washington, its people unconcerned, negligent and unmindful of their problems here at home.

The Democratic platform, on the other hand, is decisive, domestic, candid and progressive. It displays an intelligent concern in our interests here at home and therefore attests a recognition of the intelligence of the Massachusetts public.

Where the Republican platform evades, the Democratic platform attacks the abundant and evident evils of the prohibition system, condemns its corruption and asserts democratically that the authority to decide this problem should be vested in the States again.

Where the Republican platform is silent, the Democratic platform denounces the undemocratic practices of the power trust.

Where the Republican platform is silent, the Democratic platform declares that the Boston Elevated Street Railway should be acquired by the public, in the hope that service may be improved, the fares reduced and the public derive the advantages possible under community effort.

The Republican party evades the social issues of consequence. It lavishes its praise upon those acts of its own legislation which were conceived in the interest of the corporate powers that grew rich with prosperity and have significantly failed to go to the relief of the unemployed in their hour of distress.

The Democratic party meets these issues with candor and offers a progressive program for their amelioration.

It was Mr. Samuel J. Tilden who said with his clearness of vision that the Democratic party can be victorious when it has the courage to be democratic. In this campaign, it has manifested that courage. It deserves to win.

Mr. Joseph B. Ely is a splendidly progressive character.

He waged an aggressive campaign for the nomination for Governor, won it. He continues to conduct an honest, courageous and democratic campaign for election.

He is an intelligent and industrious man, well-trained by his long personal interest in the civic affairs of Massachusetts to formulate and accomplish the progressive principles which he and his party's platform express.

By his candor and by his sincerity he has manifested his democratic respect for the intelligence of the people of Massachusetts whose support he solicits.

He is in turn entitled to their respect and their confidence, which can and should be given him at next Tuesday's election.

Joseph B. Ely deserves to win.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Fame Is Only Transient

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The brief flicker to fame these anxious days not only puzzles over-night celebrities but even astounds the public gazing at their clay feet. This transition does not apply solely to fortunes of stage, screen and radio but to all forms of "public-contact" endeavor.

Gertrude Ederle, swimming the English channel and looting large in the headlines for days, passes along New York streets almost unnoticed to take her train for Rye where she is a swimming instructor. The eventful moment of air flying, not even Lindbergh ties traffic in a knot any more.

The Guy Emery, the Eddie Rickenbacker, the Michael Arlen and others as deservedly illustrious are followed by a volcano of indifference. The warm hand becomes a cold shoulder. The celebrity of a "ten day wonder" and there he goes! Two ladies last night were unable to recall the exact exploits of Ruth Eder.

A celebrity today—with exceptions of course—wears out his welcome by a careless promiscuity. If he is the hero of some extraordinary achievement he is immediately besieged by those who want to traffic in his sudden popularity, to capitalize an often-bled name.

He is asked to prattle over the radio, illuminate the news reels, endorse cigarettes, shaving soap and "celebrity night," at supper clubs. And is usually offered a "week at the hotel."

If he adopts the theory he must make hay while the sun shines, his finish is usually quick. The public yawns. He mentally clings to an overdue of celebrities. Humanity being what it is, admiration curdles into fine derision over night.

The explanation requires no analytical scrutiny. Celebrities fail to master the obvious lesson of attracting attention by the reverse process of stunning it so conspicuously effective with J. M. Barrie, Julia Arthur and Maude Adams. Greta Garbo's big box office draw is her studied isolation.

But underneath this mushroom celebrity collapse is something deeper, something sadistic. Lately America has developed a faddish lair for flouting mediocrity people out of obscurity, placing them on a pedestal and toppling them over to the accompaniment of hooping husbands.

John Gilbert is an example of Fate's flippancy. Clara Bow another. The list is long. The celebrity complex swept the nation like a spark in dry grass and many who fell for its dubious charms have paid a tragic price. The truth is that such celebrities—again the exceptions—had little on the ball at the top-up. They burst with egotism and deflated like suddenly pricked toy balloons.

The people who endure have always been self-effacing. From the Master on down the ages. Humility is a lodestone that draws us all. The closest confidants of great men are invariably tight-lipped public shunners. And what set me off preaching this way?

A little stocking subtlety was salvaged today from a magazine ad. Most men always fall for lustrous announcements. This one warns: "Adorn your legs with dullness—dullness that is provocative." You rather expected it to say something about "covering a multitude of sins"—and it did not disappoint.

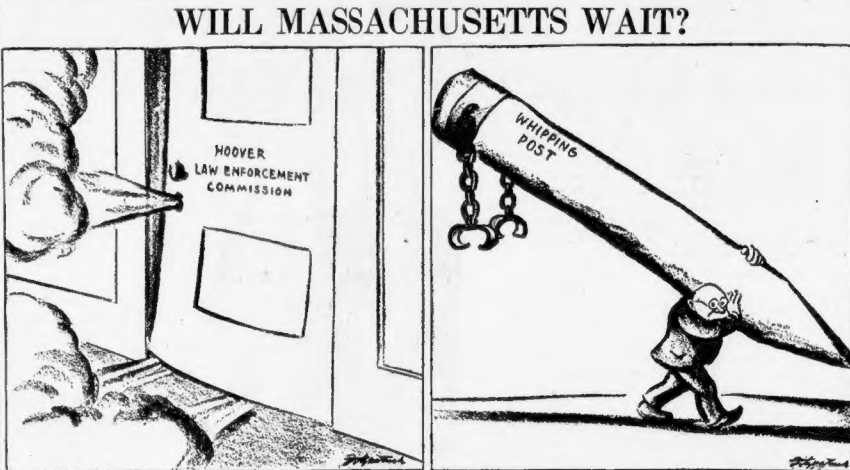

The most pluperfectly exclusive and yet the least publicized social colony around New York is reputed to be that of Tuxedo Park, which surrounds a sparkling lake at Ramapo Hills. Incidentally it was the site of the White House during the evening coat, known as the Tuxedo, was introduced to America.

Someone writes me of a railroad detective providing a sleeping tramp along a yard track. The tramp looked about puzzled, "Where the hell am I?"

Still a month ago in Texas I found for that old one and pronounced it "backache" spelling of backache as: Backache!

From Tampa: "A gentleman named O'Sullivan gives you a mousetrap for wearing pants in his Florida city magazine. Do you know him?"

No, but I wear things appropriate named for him.

IN MASSACHUSETTS, it seems, according to the Republican state platform, the people are not to be allowed to decide for themselves whether prohibition is good or bad.

They must ignore corruption and graft, gang murders, the bootlegger, hijacker and bandit.

Their minds are to be made up for them. By whom? By the Wickersham Commission at Washington!

We must not form our own judgment. We must wait one year, two years, possibly ten years and then, if we are patient, we will be handed down a decree to guide our own poor intelligence.

We have had two samples of what we may expect from this commission. First, the right of trial by jury was to be taken from us. Possible offenders, the guilty and guiltless alike, were to be railroaded to United States Commissioners, who would sit in judgment like wise owls.

Next, the whipping post was to be restored. The fellow who, in a moment of exuberance mayhap, took one drink too many was to bare his back, say in Dock Square, where the cat-o-nine tails would be applied to him in the presence of the gaping mob. One drink, one slash. Two drinks, two welts. And so on. Probably the bootlegger or hijacker who sold the gin would be in the crowd enjoying the spectacle.

The Democratic platform says, "Be done with all this foolishness now."

The Rhyming Optimist

THE HEARTSTONE BRIGIT

Tonight the first fire of the Autumn glows
Upon our hearts; the dancing flames release
Imprienced sunlight from the logs:
light flows
In ruddy streams, and heart's swift waves increase.
Till ardent Summer days seem here again
As when the world was brimmed with bloom and song.
Without, the pallid year is on the wane,
Yet here, like butterflies, bright memories throng.

But not alone the heartfire, brave
and gay,
Brings Summer to this place
where we rejoice,
For here is love that does not pass away.
Love lights your eyes, love thrills
within my voice,
The first fire of the Autumn glows
tonight,
But it is love that makes our heart-stone bright.

Words of the Wise Men

If you wish to remove avarice you must remove its mother, luxury. —Cicero.
There is nothing more requisite in business than dispatch. —Addison.
It is only those who possess firmness who can possess gentleness. —La Rochefoucauld.
Devotion, mother of obedience. —Daniel.
By mutual confidence and mutual aid.
Great deeds are done and great discoveries made. —Pope.

Gulf Stream

By PROF. HENDERSON

Origin in Mystery

ONE OF the most remarkable features of the countless phenomena of the sea, which are almost infinite in their variety, is the Gulf Stream. Scientists have studied it for many years; but it is open to question whether any adequate explanation of its origin has ever been found. It is a mighty river in the ocean, and its magnitude may be realized when we state that the volume of water which the Mississippi River empties into the Gulf of Mexico is only one-tenth of the volume which flows from the Gulf of Mexico in the form of the Gulf Stream.

This mighty oceanic river of warm water has banks and bottom, not of earth, but of cold water. Its water is not only warm, but blue—indigo blue all the way from the Gulf of Mexico to the Carolina coast. Its width varies from 40 to 50 miles; it is about 200 fathoms deep, and flows steadily along with a velocity of three and a half to five miles per hour. The line of junction with common sea water is very plain; and sometimes one-half of a vessel's hull may be seen to be immersed in the Gulf Stream and the other half in the common water of the sea.

From the South American coast a great flood of warm water sweeps through the Caribbean Sea into the Gulf of Mexico. Out of the gulf there flows, between the peninsula of Florida on one side and Cuba and the Bahamas on the other, this mighty volume of the Gulf Stream. It flows northward, roughly parallel to the coast of North America; and its temperature off Sandy Hook is as high as 75 degrees Fahrenheit.

Finally, when it encounters the cold water of the Labrador current, it forms three distinct currents: one mighty volume of the Gulf Stream, moving toward Iceland, upon which down past Spain, and one flowing past the west coast of Ireland and Scotland, and reaching even the west coast of Norway.

The Gulf Stream has a peculiar cross section. The top of it is like a rounded roof, but the lower part, drifting along the Gulf Stream lower, is a boat. The latter drifts either to east or west, depending upon which side of the axis of the stream it happens to be on; but the vessel drifts along with the stream in the direction of its course.

The shallow roof current from the middle toward either edge carries the boat to one side; but the larger vessel, which rests deeper in the stream, is not affected by this superficial transverse flow and drifts with the Gulf Stream itself. Wreckage on the outer edge of the Gulf Stream is not thrown on the North American coast, being unable to stem the eastward flow of the roof current.
